

Pony Club: It's Not Just About the Riding

New Values awards recognise other member talents

Pony Club is not just about learning to ride, ribbons and competition.

Pony Club Australia is excited to announce the introduction of three Values awards for members. This is a way members can be recognised for their work for – or interest in - the community, creating sustainable solutions, or caring for horses and others.

The three badges, which can be sewn on jumpers or shirts, are for 'Sustainability Champion', 'Welfare Warrior' and 'Community Captain'. These awards are available not just for riding members, but volunteers and supporter memberships as well.

CEO Dr Catherine Ainsworth said the awards are not competitive, but designed to recognise all members who do extraordinary work in the areas of sustainability, inclusion and horse welfare.

"This is a way of encouraging members to think about social and environmental sustainability, or animal and human welfare, and come up with ideas and solutions to bring about improvement. We are proud to recognise these talents. There is no limit on the numbers we will award each year – they are based on extraordinary achievement worthy of recognition."
